

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Apparatus and methods to store permission data relating to security for a system and to receive a request to establish a telephony call. In response to the request, the telephony call is established, and after establishing the telephony call, an indication of a type of the telephony call is detected. Based on permission data
5 relating to security for the system, it is determined whether the type of the telephony call is permitted.